The steamer Sarah, Capt. S. G. Stone, but such it seems is the fact. The secr. was struck by a squall, while on her way from Mobile to New Orleans on Wednesday last, and had her cabin blown away, carrying with it several persons who were lost. Capt. Stone publishes the following account of the accident in the Mobile Tribuse of the d instant:
Yesterday afternoon, at 5:45, the recent discovery of a new species steamer Sarah was struck by a violent liquid gum or oil in that country. Iornado near Pascagoula. The steamer tract of land not less than ten mi steamer Sarah was struck by a violent tormado near Pascagoula. The steamer was hove down over two feet under water, and being broadside to the wind the engines and rudder had no effect upon her. She remained in this position perhaps a minute, and then her entire cabin and upper works were blown overboard, carrying ten persons with it. One of these ten clung to some portion of the wreck, and was pulled on board again. One other was pulled on board again. One other was pulled up on a plece of floating wreck. Eight lives were lost, viz: Mr. George Jones, pilot; Chas. Mettee, steersman; James M. Galahan, clerk; Miss Jennie Tibbets and Mrs. Gen. O'Ferrell. The chambermaid was also lost and two passengers, whose names are unknawn to me, as the list was lost with therelerk. One was an oid lady, who had been to visit her son in Mobile, and the other was a Frenchman. The tornado, or squall, struck the boat without any warning whatever, and everything was done to secure the lives. Memphis, : : : Tennessee.
